FAQ: Frequently Asked Questions: GSOC Travel Patrols

Why is travel important for Girl Scouts?

When Girl Scouts travel, they go prepared, not as tourists, but as global citizens, knowledgeable about safety, respectful of culture and intentional in planning activities, service and immersive experiences that make the world a better place.

What is a GSOC Travel Patrol?

Travel Patrols consist of special interest groups of Girl Scouts, who share travel interests, activities, and girl-led itinerary planning. Volunteer led.

Why should a girl go on a travel patrol trip?

This is an opportunity for older Girl Scouts to experience travel of their choice, while meeting Girl Scouts beyond their troop. Independent Girl Scouts not part of a troop also have an opportunity to share memories with a group of girls.

What kind of travel is for Daisies?

Daisies participate in Level 1 travel, such as globally themed field trips and events.

What kind of travel is for Brownies?

Brownies participate in Level 2 travel: day trip by train to the San Diego Zoo or Olvera Street.

What kind of travel is for Juniors?

Juniors participate in Level 3 & 4 trips, including the opportunity for 5th grade Juniors to bridge across the San Francisco Golden Gate Bridge! This Patrol meets to plan their travel itinerary together.

What kind of travel is for Cadettes?

Cadettes can participate in Level 4 travel to New York, Washington DC and Savannah, GA. This Patrol meets to plan their travel itinerary together.

What travel is for Seniors/Ambassadors?

Seniors/Ambassadors enjoy the highest Level 6 travel: New York, Savannah, Our Cabana, National Convention (2023 Orlando FL). This Patrol plans their travel itinerary together.

Why is travel progression important?

It is a way to build preparedness and confidence, as girls mature. See Travel Progression Chart.

In a mixed level troop, can other levels join?

Troop Travel is best for multi-level troops, and when your girls of the same levels are ready to join a patrol independently from their troop, then Travel Patrols are a great way for girls from multi-level troops to participate in same level travel.

How can girls fund their Travel Patrol trips?

Money earning opportunities designed to support a girl's participation in Travel Patrols are offered.

Do Travel Patrols accept cookie dough or product sales credits from GSOC girls?

Yes! Please register for the event first, then complete a Redemption Form to be reimbursed

Do troop leaders travel with the girls?

Brownie troop leaders will participate in Brownie level Travel Patrols with their troop. Leaders will learn helpful travel tips to plan troop travel in the future. Older girls travel without their leaders, chaperoned by Global Action Team volunteers.

Who are the Global Action Team adults who lead the travel patrols?

GAT volunteers are background screened, registered Girl Scout adults who are GSOC travel trainers, and have vast experience with Girl Scout travel. Volunteers donate their time to prepare girls to travel wisely, and then chaperone the trips.

Can parents join a travel patrol and pay their way?

Although the patrols are for girls, there may be opportunities for additional adult chaperones to apply to chaperone the travel patrol.

What is the Global Girl Scout patch program?

Developed by GSOC Global Action Team volunteers and girls, this patch program introduces Girl Scouts of all ages to our global sisterhood and worldwide movement. Learn more at: GSOC Global Girl Scout Patch Program.

How do girls register for the Travel Patrols?
